Netanyahu: Israel's offensive has "only started"

Israel's offensive against Hamas in the Gaza Strip has "only started". They're the words of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu as the country grapples with the surprise terrorist attacks committed by Hamas at the weekend, with a full fledged war now underway. The hostilities so far have ...

[07:19] Presenter: Mark Regev is here he is an Australian born former Israeli diplomat and he is Netanyahu's senior advisor for foreign affairs and international communications. Israeli Defence Minister Yoav Galant has ordered a complete siege on Gaza saying authorities would cut electricity and block the entry of food and fuel, those sorts of necessities were already drastically limited say Palestinians. Is that a proportionate response punishing more than two million people some of whom of course are civilians for the actions of Hamas.

Mark Regev: Well I'll ask you the following question, can you give me a situation where a neighbouring territory attacked a country murdered its people, took dozens hostage and then the other country says 'open trade borders are open electricity flows water is supplied'? They declared war on us. They declared war on us through their actions they declared war on us through the fact that they came across the border and murdered our people and I think we're responding in a way that any other country would do in a similar situation.

“Mark Regev is here he is an Australian born former Israeli diplomat and he is Netanyahu's senior advisor for foreign affairs and international communications.”¹

Regev condemns South Africa as an agent of Hamas, an attack against Israel, and that Israel knows how to respond to those who attack it.

- Amna Nawaz:
I need to ask you about the level of civilian casualties as a result of those bombings, though, because you have said before that Israel will take the maximum steps to not — to avoid civilian casualties.

[MARK REGEV]

“Mark Regev is here he is an Australian born former Israeli diplomat and he is Netanyahu's senior advisor for foreign affairs and international communications.”¹

As you know, the Gaza Health Ministry now says some 5,000 Palestinians have been killed in the last 17 days, including women and children. I just wonder how you square saying that you're avoiding civilian casualties as much as you can and that number of 5,000.

Well, do you know how many Hamas terrorists you have hit, then?

(Crosstalk)

- Mark Regev:
Well, lots. And if all those 5,000 are Hamas terrorists, that's a good thing. We want to get them.

Netanyahu adviser accuses Hamas of inflating civilian casualty numbers in Gaza

The Lead

CNN's Jake Tapper speaks with Mark Regev, a senior adviser to Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, about the large civilian casualty numbers health officials are reporting in Gaza.

16th October 2023

Jake Tapper So, certainly taking out Hamas' leadership I understand the point of that. But the Palestinian Health Ministry in Gaza says 28 hundred Palestinians have been killed and somewhere between 1/4 and 1/3 of them are children that's not Hamas's leadership.

Mark Regev: Can I please offer word of caution. Now I know that there is real suffering in Gaza, there is a war going on, and innocent people are being caught up in a very difficult situation, I don't minimise that. But you have to take with a grain of salt any information that comes out of the Hamas controlled Ministry of Health in Gaza. That has to be said. Hamas is not a democracy, there's not an independent health beaurocracy that is trying to do its best. Every doctor you speak to every hospital director that you speak to works under the gun of Hamas. They are not independent. If they speak out of turn they will pay a price. It's like speaking to a doctor in North Korea or a doctor in the former Soviet Union they don't have independent opinions they have to follow the party line and if not they they face violent consequences. So those numbers they might be true they might not be true. Hamas of course has an interest in exaggerating civilian casualties

SARAH FERGUSON, PRESENTER: As we heard in that story, Benjamin Netanyahu used apocalyptic words last night to describe Israel's war on Hamas. The Israeli military says it's already carried out 7,000 bomb strikes on Gaza.

Overnight, there were raids into the territory, understood to be preparation for a larger ground invasion.

Mark Regev is a senior adviser to the Israeli Prime Minister.

Mark Regev, welcome to 7.30.

“Mark Regev is here he is an Australian born former Israeli diplomat and he is Netanyahu's senior advisor for foreign affairs and international communications.”¹

MARK REGEV, SENIOR ADVISOR TO ISRAELI PRIME MINISTER: Thank you for having me.

MARK REGEV: I'd like to say two things on that issue. Number one, I mean if Israel wasn't concerned about civilian casualties in Gaza, we could just bomb all those underground facilities from the air and destroy them with massive bombing, and no, we're going to send our soldiers in in very dangerous house to house fighting and Hamas has got booby traps and tunnels and fortifications.

It would be much easier just to bomb and destroy from the air. We don't do that precisely because we don't want to see wholesale destruction of Gaza's civilian population, heaven forbid. We want them to leave the area and we understand not everyone can.

SARAH FERGUSON: Israel is accused of killing thousands of people in Gaza. Once the ground invasion begins, how do you prevent that number getting up to the 10,000 mark?

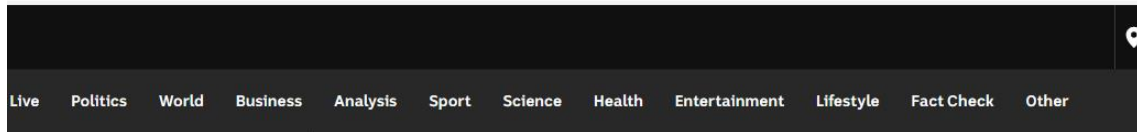

MARK REGEV: First of all, I urge you and everyone else to be very careful with the statistics that come out of Gaza, because all those, the numbers about casualties are all provided by Hamas-controlled...

SARAH FERGUSON: I didn't quote the exact number from Hamas. Nonetheless, you don't deny that it's in the thousands.

MARK REGEV: The numbers that are coming out of Gaza, we have no idea how many are combatants, in other words, terrorists, and how many are civilians. We don't know those numbers.

Mark Regev: ...but the fact thirty one thirty two days since the terrible massacre the failure of the Palestinian Authority to condemn Hamas’ massacre of our people to condemn the rapes to condemn the beheadings to condemn their burning of babies alive to condemn the mass shooting of the young people at the music festival, what sort of peace partner refuses to condemn that sort of violence.

Mark Regev ...Hamas which if you read its charter openly declares that every Israeli every Jew should be killed, and they are a self professed genocidal organisation. And here you have an inversion of reality where a genocidal terrorist organisation and we all saw the sort of horrific violence they were capable of on October 7th this is being defended so to speak under this convention that was designed to prevent genocide it is an inversion of reality, an inversion of truth, an inversion of justice.

Presenter: Mr Regev two of the key words when you look at the Geneva Conventions and the rules around armed conflict around distinction and proportionality. A state distinguishing [sic] between legitimate military targets and civilians and a proportionate response to self defence. And when you look at the numbers of course those attacks of October the 7th were horrific more than 1000 Israelis lost their lives we still have people who are being held hostage which is illegal under international law but in the meantime 25,900 Palestinians have been killed in Gaza in some instances in areas where they have been told to evacuate to because it would be safer for them. Do you think Israel is acting with those two words distinction and proportionality in mind

Mark Regev: 100% our response is in accordance with international law. And you quote numbers for fatalities and many people do but those numbers are provided by the Hamas terrorist organisation and its infrastructure in Gaza, it's the Hamas controlled health ministry, ...We are sure in Israel that a large proportion of them are combatants and therefore legitimate targets for israel's military operation. ...

Presented: OK Mark Regev senior advisor to the Israeli prime ministers office. Mr Regev thank you as always for making the time plus thank you Mr

Presenter: what do you say to Jason Lee who I was just talking to I hope you heard the interview where he said some moral leadership is needed now it is time for a ceasefire, but more particularly Israel needs here to international humanitarian law. What Israel is doing in terms of preventing aid preventing food and fuel getting into Gaza is is not doing that and therefore increasing the suffering of people there Mark Regev: it's simply not true. On day one of this war the Israeli security cabinet passed a decision that said we placed no limitations whatsoever on food water medicine entering the Gaza Strip. At the same time we opened up a crossing in southern Israel the Kerem Shalom along crossing forayed into Gaza so that's augmenting the aid coming in through Rafah. And I can tell you that trucks that we've already inspected and authorised that have entered southern part of the Gaza Strip are somehow being held up and our concern is that Hamas is deliberately augmenting deliberately creating a problem with the distribution of the aid so as to put pressure on the international community to put pressure on for a ceasefire. Because that's their only lifeline. ...

AMANPOUR: Joining me now is Mark Regev. He's special adviser to the Israeli prime minister, Benjamin Netanyahu. Welcome back to the program, Mark Regev.

MARK REGEV, SPECIAL ADVISER TO THE ISRAELI PRIME MINISTER: I know the following, that in order to help alleviate the food shortage in Gaza, that we authorized a convoy of, I think, some 30 trucks entered Gaza last night, headed for the Northern Gaza Strip. And this shows that Israel is interested in seeing aid and foodstuffs reach the civilian population.

Unfortunately, we saw a situation where there was a mass casualty — tragedy where it looked like the civilians were storming the trucks, trying to take the food out of desperation. And people — a crowd was pushing and shoving and people were killed. I can't tell you the exact numbers. I don't — as you know, I don't trust the numbers put out by the Hamas controlled Ministry of Health in Gaza.

There were reports that maybe their drivers were driving over parts of the crowd. It appears to be a tragedy, but I can tell you Israel was not involved directly in any way.

AMANPOUR: When you say not involved directly in any way, what do you mean? I mean, you enabled this convoy, as you said, and your forces are there on the ground and open fire. They said it themselves. What does that mean, not involved in any way?

REGEV: So, this was, we — well, we allowed the aid to come in. We are involved that way. That's our policy to allow food to go into Gaza for the civilian population.

But in the incident of people storming the trucks and the way the truck drivers behaved and people getting squashed and pressed and apparently, they're being mass casualties, Israel was not there on the ground.

AMANPOUR: OK. But they did open fire and people were killed. So, I'm completely confused by what you're saying because they admitted, the IDF spokesman said it. Said it on our air, that they opened fire.

REGEV: That's a separate incident.

AMANPOUR: OK.

REGEV: Not connected to the tragedy with the trucks. And that was different place, different time. In the general location, but not the same incident at all.

AMANPOUR: All right.

REGEV: And I have to tell you that we are not aware that the IDF fired caused casualties at all.

AMANPOUR: Well, I can tell you that a journalist whose CNN works with on the ground has a different view of it. But maybe there were other incidents. That obviously you say are — is under review and we will hope to get further clarification.

REGEV: In that — in the first incident of the truck being swamped by civilians, there was gunfire, but it wasn't Israeli forces. There weren't Israeli forces on the trucks or around the trucks. That was Palestinian armed groups. We don't know if it was Hamas or other armed groups, but there definitely was fire, that we do know.

Now, it's quite possible. As you know, Hamas has been stealing aid, that's been documented. ... That could be one of the reasons to explain what's going on.

....

Now, we do know that there was Palestinian fire in today's tragic incident.

AMANPOUR: OK.

REGEV: Someone on the Palestinian side was there with weapons.

AMANPOUR: OK. That's your view. Nobody else has actually said that...

(BEGIN VIDEO CLIP)

“Mark Regev is here he is an Australian born former Israeli diplomat and he is Netanyahu's senior advisor for foreign affairs and international communications.”¹

JAN EGELAND, SECRETARY GENERAL, NORWEGIAN REFUGEE COUNCIL: There is very little aid, there is very little supplies there to start with, so famine is breaking out there. There is no other way to describe it, which again shows that the Karni Crossing, which is also from Israel, Israel could fix this.

They are the occupying power. They have the overwhelming military superiority. They could have convoys going over Karni Crossing, which is in the middle area from where you can easily reach the north. It's very hard from here south in Rafah and Kerem Shalom.

(END VIDEO CLIP)

REGEV: *So, it is going in and more will be going in. That's our commitment. Do you think we have an interest in starvation in the Gaza?

AMANPOUR: Well, I don't know.

REGEV: Of course we don't.

AMANPOUR: OK. I don't know. I just don't understand it.

REGEV: I'm — no, no, no. I think — we are screening trucks. We are sending trucks in. The backlog is often on the Gaza side of the frontier because of all sorts of logistic issues. ...

The people of Gaza, they say that Hamas is stealing the aid. ...
